a.	Our goal should be to end illegal immigration altogether. We do that by having controlled, legal immigration so we decide who comes into our country. And we need compassion for long-term undocumented immigrants who contribute to their community. They deserve a way to earn legal status. We will prioritize criminals and recent arrivals for deportation. We will have a fair process at our border and a fair process in our neighborhoods.....	29%	41	12	11	8	70%	22%
b.	We need to get back to basics. That means keeping our communities safe by removing immigrants who commit violent crimes. And it means protecting the promise of American opportunity. There should be a way for long-term immigrants who contribute to our country to earn legal status and for new immigrants looking to come here to build a better life.....	41%	39	8	8	4	80%	16%
c.	Both parties have failed to fix our immigration system. But we do not need to continue to remain stuck. The solution is to listen to what the American people actually want: an orderly border, using ICE to target genuine threats, and creating a fair way for long-term undocumented immigrants to earn legal status. We don't need an open border or a closed border, we need a working border.....	31%	35	14	12	8	66%	26%
d.	We need an immigration policy that is tough enough to restore order and smart enough to fix what is not working. It should be good for the economy and fair to families. Immigration should work with and not against Americans. We should welcome the immigrant workers we need, where we need them, without overwhelming communities that are already stretched thin. We will create real opportunity for immigrants willing to work for them, but no immigrant should get access to any government benefit unless they become a citizen	39%	36	11	8	6	75%	19%
e.	Biden got the border wrong. Trump got the right border results but the wrong way. We'll get it right. We need robust immigration enforcement. But we also need it to be smart, professional, and targeted at genuine threats to our country. People who are here illegally and who commit violent crimes should be deported. But people who have lived here for years, worked hard, and played by the rules should have a chance to earn legal status.....	27%	35	14	18	6	62%	32%

f.	America should decide who comes to our country based on what will strengthen and benefit us—not based on arbitrary quotas, outdated categories, or who happens to reach the border. Americans should be in charge of who comes in and at what levels, based on what strengthens our families, our communities, our economy, and our security. Every pathway should serve a purpose—reuniting families, growing the economy, or advancing America's national interests.....	27%	40	16	9	9	66%	24%
g.	The United States should live up to its promise as a country of opportunity for immigrants. At the same time, communities should have a voice in welcoming newcomers. Immigration works best when local communities are prepared and involved—not caught by surprise. Immigration doesn't end at the border. Communities deserve a seat at the table. They need to be partners and have a voice in welcoming people who want to join them.....	26%	42	13	11	8	68%	25%
h.	We are a nation of laws and a nation of immigrants. Always both. We need control of the border so we can decide who can come into our country and send home people who do not qualify. We also need to deport illegal immigrants who have been convicted of violent crimes while creating pathways to legal status for people who have been contributing to our communities for years, especially people who have a U.S. citizen spouse or children.....	44%	36	9	7	5	80%	15%
i.	Crossing the border illegally is a crime, so every illegal immigrant is a criminal and they should all be deported. We need mass detention centers to house illegal immigrants waiting to get deported. We need to conduct immigration raids across the country to find them wherever they are. We cannot have a country if we do not have strong borders.....	26%	20	15	34	5	46%	49%
