

THE CHANGING STATE OF RELATIONSHIP RECOGNITION

States sized by population

Source U.S. Census Bureau, Population Division, 2011

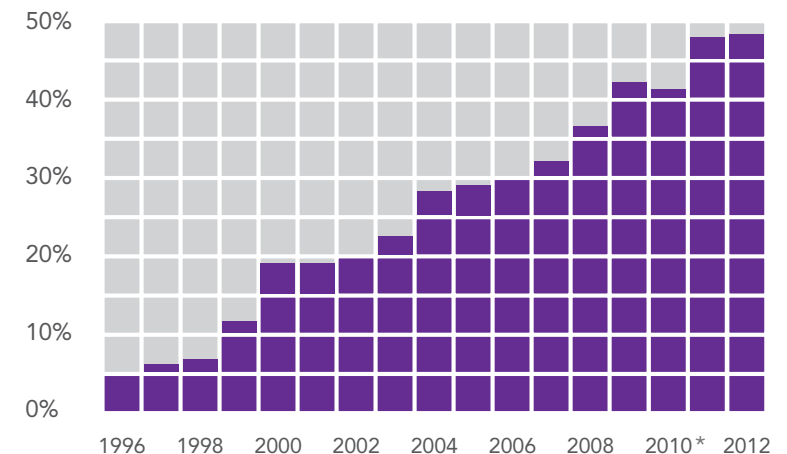

TODAY:

47.7%

of the U.S. population resides in a state or locality with a relationship recognition law.

In 1996, only 5% of Americans lived in a state or locality that had any form of legal recognition for gay and lesbian couples.

This translates to an increase from 13 million to 147 million Americans living in a jurisdiction that recognizes gay couples' relationships.

By January 2013, 8 states plus the District of Columbia will allow gay and lesbian couples to marry, and another 11 have passed civil union or domestic partnership laws that recognize gay couples' relationships. More than 100 cities across the country now have domestic partnership registries, including in states considered very conservative—like Georgia, Missouri, Kansas, and Utah.
