22.	It's getting harder and harder for people to earn the life they want. That's because the economy has changed dramatically, but government is stuck in the past. To solve this, we need an opportunity agenda for the Digital Age so that everyone, everywhere has the opportunity to earn a better life.	4	13	43	32	8	17	75
23.	The American people must make a fundamental decision. Are we prepared to take on the enormous economic and political power of the billionaire class, or do we continue to slide into economic and political oligarchy? This is the most important question of our time, and how we answer it will determine the future of our country.	8	11	33	36	12	19	69
24.	For many decades, we've enriched foreign industry at the expense of American industry. The wealth of our middle class has been ripped from their homes and then redistributed across the entire world. We must protect our borders from the ravages of other countries making our products, stealing our companies, and destroying our jobs. Protection will lead to great prosperity and strength.	11	17	27	38	7	28	65

3: POLICY PROPOSALS

Following are a series of proposals. Please read each one carefully and then answer the questions that follow.

American Investment Bank

It used to be that if someone had a great idea to start or expand a successful business, a bank was ready to lend. But banks and Wall Street have cut off lending and investing to large parts of America. That's killing the creation of good new jobs and crushing opportunity for millions. Wall Street won't solve this, so we need a new American Investment Bank that can help businesses start up and expand everywhere. The bank would do that by significantly increasing the number of small business loans backed by the federal government. It would also provide grants to states so they can work with local entrepreneurs and investors to fund start-ups and job growth.

ACA Complete

Under the Affordable Care Act (also known as Obamacare), more Americans have health coverage than ever before, but costs are still too high, coverage is too complicated, and too many people are still uninsured. Rather than repealing it, ACA Complete builds and improves upon the Affordable Care Act. It would lower costs by penalizing health care providers that overcharge, overbill, and over-prescribe. It would put all of your medical records and payments into one place that's easy to use and understand. And it would enroll those who don't have coverage in an affordable plan while making certain everyone who likes their current coverage can keep it.

Small Business Bill of Rights

The Small Business Bill of Rights would put the government on the side of small business, not against it. Even if you don't own a small business, millions of Americans work at them – and small business and startups create most new jobs in America. But even well-intentioned government regulations can become outdated and create excessive burdens that stop entrepreneurs from starting or running their business. A 21st-century Small Business Bill of Rights would remove those barriers with things like faster patent approvals, simpler and smarter regulations, and an end to regulations that give big businesses an unfair advantage over smaller ones.

Broadband for All

24 million families are left out of the digital economy simply because their city or town has 1990s internet technology—or none at all. This stops entrepreneurs from launching ideas, holds students back, prevents businesses from expanding, and hurts people who work from their homes. Broadband for All will link every single American to broadband internet in just two years by completely removing barriers to getting broadband construction approvals at every level of government and providing $25 billion in public grants so that we end the internet opportunity divide.

Boomer Corps

The Boomer Corps would be a new paid, part-time national service program that reimagines retirement for many active senior citizens. After a life-long career, many seniors want a retirement where they can make a meaningful contribution and continue to earn—but do it part time. Corps members would work 20 hours per week and earn $12,000 a year tax free, in addition to what they get from Social Security. And Corps jobs would focus on our kids, with early childhood education, after-school care, teaching, tutoring, skills training, mentoring, and coaching.

Universal Private Retirement

Universal private retirement accounts will guarantee that every worker has a single and simple private retirement account on top of, and separate from, Social Security. We need this because the traditional pension has disappeared, and most workers can't save enough. Under this proposal, employers would contribute a minimum of 50-cents per hour on top of pay into a portable retirement account that belongs to the employee. Workers could also contribute their own money. Social Security would be unchanged, companies that have traditional pensions could keep them, and a lifetime of work will mean a comfortable retirement with no added cost to the government.

Working Wage Break

The Working Wage Break will permanently eliminate all federal taxes on the first $15,000 a person earns each year. Right now, too many people work hard but can't save enough for a vacation or even to cover a family emergency. The Working Wage Break will give an immediate raise in take-home pay for everyone in the middle and working classes. For someone making $35,000, the Working Wage Break would add $1,200 to their take home pay. And it's paid for by raising taxes on those earning above $250,000 so the wage break doesn't add to the national debt.

Regional Minimum Wage Increase

It makes no sense to have a one-size-fits-all national minimum wage when everything from lunch to parking to housing is priced completely different depending on where you live. A new regional minimum wage would raise the current $7.25 minimum to anywhere from $9 to $12 per hour depending on the cost of living in different parts of the country. This regional minimum wage is set so that it is high enough to make work pay but not so high as to chase jobs overseas or have them automated away. Also, the new minimum wage would automatically rise with inflation so that we'd never need to rely on Washington politicians to raise it again.

Paid Parental Flex Plan

Raising a child is expensive and can be very difficult to balance with paid work. The Paid Parental Flex Plan will make it easier and more affordable. After a birth or adoption, every worker will get up to $600 per week for six weeks to cover missed work or the costs of a new child. Employers will also get tax incentives to offer half-time work for new parents for up to one year. And families with kids under five years old will get a larger child tax credit; it would rise from $2,000 today to $5,000 to help cover the cost of daycare, medical expenses, and other costs.

Reemployment Insurance

Losing a job today is different than in the past when laid-off workers mostly needed a weekly check until a similar job in a similar industry opened up. Today, when jobs disappear, the new jobs are often in another industry that requires different skills or a new location. To fix this, Reemployment Insurance would modernize Unemployment Insurance. It would still provide the same amount of income assistance as Unemployment Insurance currently does, but it would also offer grants for certified job training programs and a moving voucher to help cover costs if your new job is in a new location.

College Value Guarantee

There are too many colleges that simply rip people off. They are dropout factories, have high student loan default rates, and a terrible record of graduates finding decent jobs. The College Value Guarantee provides students and parents with all the facts about a school's successes and failures before they write a big check or take out an expensive college loan. The College Value Guarantee will also hold colleges accountable for student outcomes for the first time ever, making sure schools have some skin in the game if most of their students drop out, can't get a job post-graduation, or can't pay back their student loans.

Apprenticeship America

Every year millions of kids graduate from high school and are looking for an option other than a college degree that can lead to a lifetime of good earnings and is as valued and respected as college. The answer is apprenticeships. But today, the U.S. produces less than 50,000 apprenticeships a year. Apprenticeship America would create one million new training positions directly linked to jobs that pay a solid wage. In the 20th century, America established K-12 education and public colleges in every state. Now, we must add the missing piece, with federal government support to launch 50 State Apprenticeship Institutes to work with employers, workers, technical colleges and unions, and help businesses cover the cost of starting and running high-quality apprenticeship programs.
